

TWO GOOD REASONS TO COME TO THE WESTERN GALLERY

SATURDAY, JUNE 2, 1990, 3 - 5 P.M.

Come enjoy an afternoon celebration in conjunction with the exhibition of work by ALFRED HARRIS, MIKE HASCALL and JODY ISAACSON. Both Harris and Hascall will be present to discuss their work at the reception.

Beyond the plaza of the Western Gallery is the nationally known Outdoor Sculpture Collection. Known for its leadership in the concept of art in the living environment, Western has currently assembled twenty works by international, national and regional artists. Listed in order of acquisition since 1960: James Fitzgerald, Norman Warsinske, Steve Tibbetts, Isamu Noguchi, Robert Morris, Lloyd Hamrol, Mark di Suvero, Richard Beyer, Fred Bassetti, Anthony Caro, Nancy Holt, Mia Westerlund Roosen, Robert Maki, Richard Serra, Beverly Pepper, Donald Judd, John Keppelman, Alice Aycock, Michael McCafferty, and George Trakas.

On Saturdays, do not worry about parking permits! The Western Gallery is a wing of the Fine Arts Complex. The sculpture by Richard Serra is adjacent to the gallery plaza; the gallery is opposite Carver Gym. If arriving from the south, follow signs leading to WWU; take a right at the Visitor's Center (closed on Saturday), follow the road over the bridge, past the Nancy Holt "rock rings", and park anywhere in the long stretch of parking designated as 31G and 17V. At the north end of that long parking lot is a walkway leading into the gallery plaza.
